MP's apprentice visits PM's home

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon's third apprentice was given the opportunity to visit a political landmark when he was invited to 10

Downing Street. Aaron Farrell (18), who is studying at Harlow College, was given a tour of the Prime Minister's home last week by Apprenticeships Minister Matthew Hancock.

Tory backbencher Mr Halfon, who has championed the employment of apprentices by MPs, said: "Aaron is my third Harlow College apprentice and I am proud to be the first MP to have employed apprentices in Parliament.

"Aaron is an exceptional apprentice who is working hard on his Level 3 apprenticeship. It is a great and well-deserved honour for him to visit No 10 with the Apprenticeships Minister."

Aaron added: "Getting this apprenticeship with Poper and apprenticeship with Robert and working alongside him in the House of Commons has been an amazing part of my life. "Both Robert and Matthew Hancock have done excellent work in trying to increase the number of apprenticeships in the UK, which is why they are now at their highest ever level."

Ms Stride has now called for faster action to tackle what she claimed

She added: "The Government is turning the clock back with their plans to scrap the ASBO and replace it with a weaker power which carries no criminal sanction

"The Government's community trigger, which demands a response if a person has complained three

Aldi tweaks plans new food store

BUDGET supermarket chain Aldi hopes it will be third time lucky when Harlow Council considers revised plans for its proposed store in The Stow

The German retailer's last planning application - itself a revision of proposals originally submitted back in 2009 - was rejected by the authority in December last year.
But the firm is confident it has

If the new plans are approved by members of the development management committee, the supermarket chain will start work immediately - and believes the new store could be open by this time next year.

Aldi Property Director Adam Ward told the Star: "We were very disappointed that perm-ission was refused and whilst we don't necessarily agree with

All other benefits previously proposed - including a new 'shared shopper' car park for The Stow, improved pedestrian

SIR. Why would Marks & Spencer want to move from a prime location in the town? (Star, May 23). People use the shop to access the Harvey Centre from Broad Walk and, like me, will invariably end up buying something they never even knew they wanted or needed. People do not go to a retail park to window shop or browse; they go with a specific buy in mind such as, electrical or DIY goods and only then because there is nowhere in the town to buy them.

Many M&S customers like me do not drive so it would mean a journey of two buses for some of us. And don't get me started on the bus service in Harlow, which is abominable unless you live in Church Langley of course. Even driving there can be a nightmare with the amount of traffic on the roads

If the reason is space then why not reopen the upper floor? I never understood why they closed it in the first

The internet is already badly affecting our shopping centres; we don't need the remaining shops making themselves inaccessible as well. If this move goes ahead, BHS's turnover will certainly take a turn for the better as I expect many people myself included will shop there instead.

C. Lomas Radburn Close, Harlow

Savings ahead of service

SIR, In answer to your question about Marks & Spencer, no I will not be shopping there as much as I do now if they move or close the store in the town centre - for two reasons.

Firstly, I am a senior citizen and have no car. Very few buses, if any, go down to the Harlow Retail Park. Secondly, on principal.

Even if I could get down to the retail park I could not carry much shopping as I have knee and hip problems, like a lot of my friends and other people in the town.

A lot of M&S customers are in the 40age range who have always been loyal, age range who have always been loyal but I suspect only the customers who drive or have someone to take them down to the retail park will still shop there. Once again it is the people who are vulnerable that suffer.

Also, a lot of workers who pop in for their sandwiches and a drink at lunch time will now take their custom elsewhere as they would not be prepared to drive to the retail park during their lunch break.

Quite a lot of people on the buses have been discussing this problem and all are disgusted as they feel it is all to do with saving money and not giving a good service.

If M&S put prices down for a smaller profit they may sell more products and make an even bigger profit. Also the upstairs of the Broad Walk store could be opened as a restaurant. Jean Saville

Glynis Campbell Tickenhall Drive, Harlow

All I seek, councillor, is honesty and transparency

SIR, It has been brought to my attention that I am the subject of a letter in the Star written by Cllr Anthony Durcan (Letters, May 2).

At the outset he has misquoted me stating the councillors should be better prepared. Councillors are representatives of a multi-million pound concern Harlow Council. When the head of Harlow Council. When the head of that council appears at a residents' association meeting and cannot answer the most basic of questions - do you have a policy on West Sumners? - I will consider him ill-prepared. When Cllr Durcan turns up at the previous meeting and feels West Sumners is about shopping areas, schools etc he is ill-advised.

His letter only reinforces my opinion that those within the present administration are either not prepared or are unable to see the problem for what it really is. Cllr Durcan sees this as an issue about "the regeneration of the shops, schools, doctors, parkways and community centres for the Sumners estate", but these points, as we have stated before, are irrelevant.

West Sumners is one of four proposed developments surrounding Harlow but the town was never designed for mass vehicle transport. Our road network is vastly overstretched.

If the developments were to take place If the developments were to take place will they add to the council tax of Harlow or take one person off the housing waiting list? Would Cllr Durcan agree they will put additional strain to hospital waiting lists, school places, doctors' waiting lists etc? waiting lists etc?
Councillor Durcan has stated that I want people to think as I think but that has never been my intention. I merely seek information and ask our politicians to be honest and transparent.

If he can identify any positive outcome for myself, my family or Harlow in general, I would welcome his thoughts.

Anonymous phone call raised my suspicions

SIR, Regrettably, I believe the developer's consultation into the Son of Harlow North project may have already

I received an odd telephone call more than a couple of months ago. When I answered, the caller asked if I would answered, the caller asked if I would be prepared to respond to a survey on housing. I agreed and she double-checked that I lived in an appropriate postcode, which I did. It borders the River Stort and is opposite the proposed

The first question was not about housing. Instead I was asked if I agreed with the need to generate jobs in the area. Who can say no to that? So I realised immediately that there would be an attempt at manipulation of my answers and I asked who was behind answers and I asked who was behind the survey. The operator refused to disclose this, saying that I could only be told once I had completed the survey. I ended the call, appalled that I was expected to give answers at the beginning which were probably designed to undermine answers I might later give objecting to housing development.

If the Gilston Park Estate project gets any kind of traction and if the call I any kind of traction and if the call I received was connected with it, then it's possible that we can expect sharp practice and a lack of transparency from the parties driving it.

So I would say don't respond to any anonymous surveys. Express your opinions, in all their subtlety, through the proper channels.

A. Kurton Spring Hills, Harlow

Actively seeking opinions on matters of concern

SIR, I hope you will allow me to express my thanks to all those people who have written, e-mailed, phoned and spoken to me in the street with their support and encouragement following my move from Conservative to independent status in Harlow Council.

La will, of course, continue to give my best efforts to serving the residents, not only in my ward of Great Parndon but also over the whole town as and when the need may arise. In the meantime I am recruiting a panel of like-minded citizens to give me their opinions on a number of issues of concern to all of us. I will be connecting also with tenant and leaseholder bodies and with resident associations. Finally, I should like to thank the Star

Top cop back on the beat during return to Harlow

THE new Chief Constable of Essex went back to the shop floor on Tuesday when Top cop Stephen Kavanagh went out on patrol with PCSO Rebecca Lee after meeting with senior officers at Harlow Police Station.

Mr Kavanagh, who also visited the town during a whistlestop tour of the county during his first day as Chief Constable earlier this month, said: "My father actually served in Harlow as Chief Inspector and I know that it is a very proud force that has been through a lot of big changes.

"The one thing we have to make sure of in the north of the county and in busy areas such as Harlow is that officers can respond quickly, and effectively, to a call.
"Members of the public want to feel safe, and we as a force want to be able to provide the right service which is quick and sees members of the public treated

He said he had been impressed by the professionalism of officers during his visit.

"The last time I was in Harlow was a great experience," he added. "I was out with an officer who had a fantastic relationship with a lot of the local shops.

"He knew everyone from the pawnbrokers to the store managers, and recognised local shoppers and those who may need that extra support."

Police treating council flat fire as 'hate crime'

POLICE investigating a devastating arson attack which left two women homeless believe the couple may have been targeted because of their sexuality.

Lorraine Turner (42) and partner Sue Bashforth (46) were lucky to escape with their lives after the blaze ripped through their ground-floor council flat in Pennymead in the early hours of March 17.

At the time, they told the Star they owed their lives to their cats after being woken by their pets' howling. Fire investigators believe the fire was started deliberately after flammable liquids were poured through a catflap in the front door - and police are now treating the attack as a hate crime.

Speaking to the Star this week, a distraught Lorraine appealed for anyone with information to come forward.

"I would urge anyone who knows who might have done this to contact the police before they try something like this again." The couple, who had been celebrating

"It's been three months of hell for us as we've been moved from one temporary accomodation to another," Lorraine said. "We lost everything in that fire,

The group of 15 wounded, injured or sick servicemen and veterans have taken on the huge challenge in the hope of raising

"Whether they are riding, fundraising or cheering on the streets, we urge everyone to get involved," he said. "With the withdrawal from Afghanistan drawing closer, it is easy to think the job is over but actually the battle has just begun. Challenges such as this allow our support to continue - for life.'

Fab festival brings Bank Holiday sunshine to Water Gardens

FESTIVAL fever hit Harlow over the weekend as hundreds of Bank Holiday revellers flocked to The Water Gardens to enjoy a packed programme of live music and entertainment.

Organised by local faith group Heart 4 Harlow, the event kicked off on Thursday evening with a live set from top tribute act The FAB Beatles, who played a pitch-perfect set of their heroes' greatest hits to a packed crowd in the shopping complex.

The fun then continued across the weekend, with music and dance acts from local schools and churches, performances from Harlow's community choir and a children's funfair keeping shoppers entertained throughout the four-day extravaganza.

Centre manager Beryl Murphy told the Star: "The Fab Beatles were fantastic, and to have an act of that quality in The "It was an excellent way to start four days of The Heart 4 Harlow Festival.

"We hope our shoppers enjoyed the live music and that it added to their overall experience at The Water Gardens."

Town chaplain and co-organiser Robert Findlay added: "There was a wonderful attendance at the festival.

"We would welcome ideas and offers to help make it even bigger and better next

Mother and son set fitness challenge

A MOTHER and son team are hoping to help residents get fit with a healthy challenge - and a cash incentive.

Louise Burgess, of Gladwin Way, Harlow, and son Darren will be launching an eight-week fitness challenge next Thursday (June 6) in the hope of getting people active and healthy.

Louise, who works for Herbalife, said: "This is the first time we have ever done this in Harlow and I'm hoping it'll be a big success.

"People have to lose as much weight and body mass as possible in the eight-week period to win. Our top three will win a cash prize.

cash prize.

"We will offer one-to-one sessions as well as nutritional advice to make sure everything is done in a healthy, safe way and hopefully by the end of it, everyone should be fitter - it's all about wellness."

The challenge costs £39 to enter, and there will be two launch sessions on Thursday. The first will be held at Holy Cross Church Hall at midday and the second will be held at St John's Art Centre at 6pm. For more information contact Louise on 07543264959.

A MEMORIAL concert held at The Square in Harlow has raised £800 for St Clare Hospice.

The Hastingwood-based hospice looked after Simon Spall, who died from cancer at St Clare in 2011 at the age of just 23.

Simon's girlfriend Alice Paul, who organised the fundraiser, said: "I'm very grateful to The Square for helping us organise the event and for everyone who came to show their love and support.

"We were able to raise £800 for St Clare which was a lot more than we ever expected to raise. I was overwhelmed with the support."

Make a difference to a child's life become a Shared Carer!

We need caring, responsible people who can welcome a child with a disability into their home primarily to offer support on a regular basis.

All children placed with Shared Carers have disabilities.

This could be a learning or physical disability, sensory impairment, long term medical needs, or a combination of any of these.

The Shared Care Service offers families of children with a disability an opportunity of a break and gives the child a chance to meet new people, make new friends and access different social and leisure opportunities.

Children such as Kieron, who is currently waiting to be matched with a Shared Carer. He has developmental delay, is deaf and is a very sociable child who enjoys playing with other children.

A little of your time really can make a BIG difference

Shared Carers can be single or a couple, with or without children. We will carry out an assessment of you and your family and provide you with training, support and expenses.

We currently have opportunities for Shared Carers to provide both day care and overnight care, dependant on your availability and experience.

Footie socials for everybody

THE town has always had a strong commitment to local sports - be it football, boxing, cricket or swimming. And it seems that as soon as the new town teams started becoming successful, the social side quickly followed.

Harlow United, which was formed in the 1950s, was quick to make headlines in the local papers... and not just for its talented footballers.

In the team's first season in 1956 they had only dropped one point from a possible 10 but it was the club's focus on the social side of sports that was creating interest

The football team activities off the pitch were aimed at the families and friends of the players. The first club social in November 1951, pictured above, attracted a large group of children, grandparents and partners of the sports players.

The event was held in the Tenants' Common Room at Mark Hall and organised by the chairman of the social committee, Mr Parfitt, with the help of Journalism-themed week is headline news

FAWBERT & BARNARD'S Budding feature writers, reporters and photographers had the chance to

The young reporters were set various events to cover, including a talent competition, a fashion show, sporting events and a talk from Mr

Pirate mutiny to celebrate literacy

POTTER STREET PRIMARY Young bookworms celebrated their love of literature by dressing up as pirates and taking part in lots of swashbuckling activities.

Children's author Jack Trelawny - famous for his pirate books - visited the school on Thursday and his stories took over as pupils and staff dressed up as fearsome pirates the following day.

Students then took part in various activities including pirate lessons, treasure hunts and writing letters to Mr Trelawny.

Teacher and event organiser

Jo Morgan said: "We are promoting literacy and writing right across our school and thought this was a wonderful way of doing it.
"We had lots of different activities and the class with the best homework won a prize and the best students won a signed book by Jack Trelawny himself. "We also had a big celebration with our whole school assembly and all the children were really excited about being a part of it and dressing as pirates for the day."

Students finished the swashbuckling school day with a special assembly where the pupils with the best homework collected their prize.

"We wanted to show our children just how exciting reading and writing can be. and how much fun they can have with it," Ms Morgan added. "I think it was a success because everyone loved Jack Trelawny's visit -and dressing up was a great way to end the school half-term!"

TV show was my recipe for success

IT'S nearly two months since I first appeared on BBC TV's MasterChef.

Often competitors on this and similar shows talk about how it has been a life-changing experience for them. "Yes, yes ... of course it has, dear" I've been known to murmur at the screen at such moments. Now here I am having had a life-changing moment of my own!

Before MasterChef I was an enthusiastic home cook, catering for friends and family. Now I am a private chef and have completed three dining events in my first week of business. I have even had a referral from Shelina Permalloo, last year's MasterChef champion.

My experiences during MasterChef

My experiences during MasterChef and the amazing feedback I received from the judges and professional chefs I met have given me the confidence to believe in myself and my food and to make me dare to dream that I can build a career in the food world.

I am overwhelmed by the amount of support I've received. I've been stopped lots of times when I'm out and about and asked "Are you that lady from MasterChef?", "Are you the lady who cooks?" and "Are you that one from the telly?" I've been recognised in supermarkets a lot (I've brought the Waitrose checkouts to a standstill!) and even at the polling station.

The time when being recognised had the greatest impact was probably the first one, while I was shopping with my mother-in-law. A lady in a shop said how much she and her husband loved my food on the programme and she even asked for my autograph. It was such a lovely feeling and she was so encouraging, wishing me all the best for the future – I was grinning from ear to ear for the rest of the afternoon.

By MasterChef star Saira Hamilton, who was born and grew up in Harlow and now lives in Sawbridgeworth

It's so lovely when people stop to chat, particularly because everyone has been so kind and supportive, saying how much they enjoyed watching me and my funny facial expressions on the show!

The best thing I hear (and I hear it quite a lot) is that when people saw the dishes I created on MasterChef, they wanted to climb through the screen and eat them. That is the most incredible compliment. All I wanted was to create food that people would want to eat and be happy to have eaten Watching the programme brought back so many good memories; I had a brilliant time during filming, I enjoyed every minute of it. I promised myself when I got through to the first heats that I would treat the whole thing as an adventure – after all, this was to be a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

There was no point in worrying and being anxious – I was determined to grab it with both hands and have fun.

My favourite moments were cooking my lamb bhuna for the previous winners, the exhausting mass catering at Heathrow Airport (with the great feedback for the sticky pear sponge!) and the night at the Savoy cooking for the Bond Girls.

When we realised where we were going and who we would be cooking for, it all took on a slightly surreal edge. But when I'd plated my dishes and John Torode gave me such great feedback it made me realise how far I'd come.

The advice I had from Atul Kochar at my Benares masterclass and from John and Gregg throughout the competition had enabled me to take that leap and make my good, honest food into a gorgeous-looking plate, which didn't look out of place in the private dining room at the Savoy. That was a standout moment for me.

So what's next? I have started my company - small aubergine - through which I will be offering private dining, cookery lessons and soon, I hope, a cookbook. I have been booked for live cooking demonstrations at Mark David Kitchens of Sawbridgeworth on July 13, July 23 and August 27, and I can't wait to get started with those.

I have also had a number of enquiries about private cookery lessons for small groups. My ultimate dream is to have a cookery school, and I'm currently looking for suitable venues to hold 'pop-up' cookery schools. All in all, it's a very exciting time.

My feeling about food is simple: sharing good food and time with people you love is the most rewarding thing in life. If I can make a career out of cooking my food for people to enjoy and make my Indian-inspired dishes accessible enough for people to try themselves at home, rather than buying a jar of curry sauce, MasterChef will have been the best life-changing experience I could ever have wished

for.

YOUR dream HOME

WHEN you're on the look out for your dream home, the old advice is always the best.

For example, you'll have heard it many times but location, location, location should always be uppermost in your mind.

Do your research and take time to learn as much about an area before you commit to buy. You may feel you know the area you're looking to buy in well, but living in an area is very different to visiting it or just passing through.

Don't make the mistake of falling in love with a home in an unsuitable location. And the term 'unsuitable' covers a multitude of possibilities, not simply a footpath passing through your garden or a neighbour's overgrown hedge.

Think about how near you are to local schools. How long is it going to take you to commute to work? Are you close enough to be able to pick up public transport when you need it?

Buying a property is an emotional as well as a practical decision. If you fail to make a wise choice, your home could be a costly decision you'll soon regret.

Help yourself to buy your dream home by ensuring you know what you want, where you want it and at the price you can afford.

Woolwich outrage will not stop us working together am sure all Star readers are aware of the terrible events in Woolwich last week. Within hours of that event our teams were speaking to local Army contacts and faith group leaders from a number of different religions.

The message from everyone we spoke to was unanimous – these type of incidents will not stand in the way of our community in Harlow working

The Neighbourhood Constables on our team have been working flat out on some problem offenders in the town and this has led to a number of Anti-Social Behaviour Orders being issued by Essex

One offender, a 13-year-old boy who was a particular problem around Old Harlow and Bush Fair, now has a twoyear order which includes a night-time curfew. Two adults who had been a constant nuisance around the town centre were given indefinite orders and both have been jailed for breaching

The amount of time and paperwork these orders take to complete correctly CRIME WATCH for the court is massive but is ultimately worth it as they allow residents and businesses to get on with their daily routine without being harassed.

nce again, our excellent town centre PCSOs have assisted in making excellent arrests.

There was a brief spate of handbag thefts in and around Broad Walk but this has stopped since the arrest of two adult females at the end of April. They have been charged with theft offences.

f you own or use a large van and are aware of a spate of thefts of catalytic converter parts nationally, you may wish to speak to our crime prevention specialist Graham Anthony.

Call him via our non-emergency 300383 during office hours. Graham can also advise on personal safety, anti-burglary hints and a number of

We are using our mobile police office more and more. If you see the vehicle about - it is rather large and you shouldn't miss it - do pop in and speak to us. We often have handouts for children as well as help and advice leaflets and ideas.

The mobile office will be at the Church Langley Tesco on June 4 from noon and at the Staple Tye shopping centre on June 18, also from noon.

There is an open invite to meet Nick Alston, the new Police and Crime Commissioner for Essex, at the Civic 8.30pm next Wednesday (June 5). Just turn up to get an insight into the plans of the man charged with directing police activity in our county.

inally, I must draw your attention to a brilliant event that will be happening at Harlow Football Stadium on Sunday, July 28. It's called 'The Harlow 5 Aid Charity' and will be a fun day for all the family

It will be an all-ticket event supporting local charities so look out for advertisements locally, but as a sneak preview I can tell you that the Harlow Police Football Team will be taking on a team of celebrities. There will also be an inter-school football competition involving every school in Harlow.

It's not just about football, though - there will be stalls, music and fun events all day so please get a ticket as soon as they become available emember that information on your neighbourhood issues and details of ways to contact us are on the Essex Police website at www.essex.police.uk.

Pensioner jailed for sex crimes appeals against convictions

AN elderly ex-soldier has been given permission to challenge his convictions for a string of alleged sex crimes.

Reginald Davies (79), who lived at the Esbies estate in Sawbridgeworth, was jailed for 11 years at Kingston Crown Court in December last year after he was convicted of sex attacks on four youngsters in Caerphilly, South Wales, between 1949 and 1973.

The former miner and Royal Dragoon was found guilty of rape, attempted rape, indecent assault and indecency with a child.

Davies, who was extradited from Australia to stand trial for the crimes he was alleged to have committed from the age of 15, protested his innocence and on Friday was granted permission to take his case to the Court of Appeal in London.

His barrister, Mark Kimsey, argued his trial was unfair because of the unprecedented lapse of time between the alleged offences and the case going before a jury.

Mr Kimsey said there was little chance of Davies getting a fair hearing and the charges against him should have been thrown out by the trial judge.

New hospice doctor signs up for the Midnight Walk

With just over a month to go before this year's event, completed registration forms are arriving daily but there is always room for more walk-

One of those who will be taking part in the Star-supported fundraiser is new hospice doctor Enam Khan, who will be walking with his daughter, Afia.

Dr Enam, who started working at the Hastingwood hospice in March, said: "Without funding none of us would be here at St Clare to help patients, so it's only right that I get involved."

This year, for the first time, there are two walks - the ONE of the largest groups to sign up for the Midnight Walk is being led by 16-year-old Megan Serdet, who will be joined by 22 friends and family when she walks in memory of her great nan.

Megan, from The Gowers,
Harlow, said: "It has been relatively easy to get people involved.
Some are friends from school but the majority of our group are from Harold's Park Farm Riding

Centre in Nazeing. "Everyone has been more than

It is open to schools, youth clubs, drama, dance groups and friends with a passion for performing. Entrants invited to take part in one of three regional finals in September and October. Each group will attend a boot camp day and receive top tuition from a team of professional artists to make their final performance as polished as possible.

"This is the world's best feeling, although I'm totally exhausted. Even at 80 I can still do quite well."

Miura conquered the mountain despite undergoing heart surgery in January for an irregular heartbeat - his fourth heart operation since 2007.

On his website, Miura explained his attempt to scale Everest at such an advanced age: "It is to challenge (my) own ultimate limit," he said. "It is to honor the great Mother Nature."

His record may not last for long, however, as an 81-year-old Nepalese man this week began his own ascent of the world's highest peak.

Terry dares to be different with new show

UNPREDICTABLE, unhinged and unbelievably hilarious - award-winning comedian Terry Alderton is back on tour and heading for Harlow Playhouse. The 42-year-old has become one of the most talented and inventive comedians on the UK circuit thanks to a madcap blend of noises, voices and physical theatre, giving audiences a unique insight into the inner workings of his brilliantly bonkers comedy mind. His energetic live shows have led to him being crowned The Sun newspaper's Comedian of the Year and regular appearances on Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow and Dave's One Night

His latest offering, titled Season Four?, promises to see Terry in full flight as he takes his one-man double act to new heights.

It follows his criticallyacclaimed smash hit Edinburgh shows and sold-out national tours in 2010, 2011 and 2012. Local audiences were treated to a sneak preview of the show last December when Southend-born Terry tested out material at an intimate gig in Bishop's Stortford, which went down a storm with comedy fans at the packed-out Long Room at the Half Moon in North Street. Speaking to the Star at the time, Terry said: "My audience is growing at a fast rate now; in the early days some people didn't get what I was

GARDENING & PUZZLES

Wet feet wonders

THE other week, maverick designe Diarmuid Gavin advised gardeners that they would have to roll with the weather to ensure their gardens survived and thrived the extremes.

That advice may prove useful to people who are looking out on yet another rainy day and wondering which plantings will withstand consistently soggy conditions and come to life in very wet soil.

Look at the positives of having a boggy site. Damp ground is a valuable wildlife habitat and there are plenty of plants which will thrive happily with wet feet, including bugle (Ajuga reptans), Siberian iris, lobelia, Arum lily and globeflower.

As for trees, native willows and alder are at their happiest in damp conditions if you have plenty of space to plant them a safe distance from your house.

Quite a few perennials and shrubs will thrive, such as hostas (although be vigilant against slugs and snails) and Jerusalem sage (Pulmonaria saccharata), an evergreen with white spotted foliage and red, pink or white flowers that bloom from late winter to late spring, while the foam flower (Tiarella cordifolia) is a spreading perennial with spikes of creamy white.

by Hannah Stephenson

Popular shrubs which will tolerate a lot of water include many viburnums, dogwoods and spiraea. For those with big bog gardens which are wet throughout the winter and damp in summer, go for the enormous Gunnera manicata, which has dark green deciduous leaves spanning up to 2.5m (8ft) and provides a great backdrop for seasonal flowers.

If you haven't much space, it may be better to plump for smaller specimens such as houttuynia and mimulus.

Another plant that boasts impressive foliage is the skunk cabbage (Lysichiton americanus), which grows 1m (3ft) high by 1.25m (4ft) wide. But try not to plant it too close to nose level, as its big yellow flowers have a striking odour.

If you are creating a bog garden, bear in mind that bog plants look best in bold groups. Combine a good clump of foliage with some smaller, more colourful choices.
For those who want more colour, astilbes love wet soil and produce delicate plumes in white, pink, mauve, red and crimson in summer.

For a splash of green and yellow in spring, Euphorbia palustris is the one to go for, although beware of the milky sap which can irritate skin.

Cowslips should also be included in your bog garden border. Among the best is the giant cowslip (primula florindae), which grows to around 1m (3ft) and carries stunning tubular pendant yellow scented flowers in Another wonderful variety which is easily sown from seed is Primula denticulata, which bears beautiful flowerballs in lavender, cerise, mauve or white. And candelabra primulas are also bursting with colour in early summer, in a vast range of colours.

For a tall, elegant perennial, try Ligularia przewalskii, which has 2m (6ft) high stems and produces spires of yellow flowers in mid to late summer.

If you want your colour scheme to last longer, plant some Rodgersia podophylla, which has creamy white flowers in the summer and leaves which change colour beautifully in the autumn.

Remember that with plants which love soggy conditions, weed carefully as many of them will seed around the parents. If primulas do this, they have a tendency to produce a lot more colours.

If you want your wet garden to look natural, plant around existing features such as logs or mossy tree stumps. And make sure you dig in plenty of organic matter to help them along.

With a little imagination, you can soon reap the rewards of consistently wet soil and it should help stave off the misery of looking out at the rain.

TOE DEATH us do PART: Susan Sarandon. Robin Williams and Robert De Niro in THE BIG WEDDING

A-list cast, C-list plot

THE BIG WEDDING certificate 15, 1h29m

Based on the 2006 French farce Mon Frere Se Marie, The Big Wedding chronicles the trials and tribulations of a fractured family on the biggest day in one young man's life.

Justin Zackham's lacklustre English-language remake is laden with Oscar-winning and Oscarnominated talent with impeccable comedic credentials including Diane Keaton, Robert De Niro, Katherine Heigl and Robin Williams. In fact, it is an embarrassment of acting riches

But where it matters - plot, character development and hearty belly laughs - The Big Wedding fails to deliver. Perhaps something was lost in translation but Zackham's script lacks snappy dialogue and the aisles are crammed who abandons all hope for the souls of the bride and groom-to-be because they won't impose religion on their children and a sex-starved twentysomething virgin who is saving himself for his own wedding night.

The rogue's gallery includes a Catholic priest

At the centre of all this madness is Alejandro Griffin (Ben Barnes), the Colombian-born adopted son of Don (Robert De Niro) and Ellie (Diane Keaton), who is poised to say "I do" to sweetheart Missy O'Connor (Amanda Seyfried). As the big day beckons, Alejandro has a huge favour to ask his now divorced adoptive parents. He needs them to pretend that they are still married so that his biological mother - a devout Catholic called Madonna (Patricia Rae) who is flying in specially for the wedding - won't be offended

Don, who now lives with Bebe (Susan Sarandon), and Ellie reluctantly agree to go along with the charade, as do the couple's grown-up children Lyla (Katherine Heigl) and Jared (Topher Grace), who have their own

Once Madonna arrives at the celebrations with her sexually voracious daughter Nuria (Ana Ayora) in tow, one little white lie stacks atop another, right up to the point that family priest Father Monighan (Robin Williams) asks Alejandro and Missy to pledge themselves to each other before God. Sure enough, the tower of fibs eventually topples over

It's a fair summation of The Big Wedding, a frothy and harmless confection that squanders the on-screen talent. Keaton, De Niro and Sarandon are powerless to polish the dialogue into sparkling gems, while Heigl's character embarks on an emotional rollercoaster that should have us choking back tears by the finale Even Williams is out of sorts as the holy man.

certificate 15, 1h25m

While MPs continue to be divided over the legalisation of drugs as means to reduce violent crime, James DeMonaco's brutal thriller proposes a far more radical solution.

The Purge suggests that for one night every year, citizens can take up knives and guns to kill anyone they choose without legal reprisals. A boss who withheld promotion can be terminated by an aggrieved employee; a jilted lover can break more than their old flame's heart.

By allowing violence to spill on to the streets in such barbaric fashion, every man, woman and child can release their seething anger, allowing peace to reign for the remaining 364 days of the year.

The year is 2022. In the USA unemployment is a mere one per cent and there is almost no crime.

Security salesman James Sandin (Ethan Hawke) returns home to his luxurious gated community and his wife Mary (Lena Headey) and children Zoey (Adelaide Kane) and Charlie (Max Burkholder). But tonight is Purge night and at 7pm a siren will sound that grants anyone immunity from prosecution for killing for the next 12 hours. As the deadline approaches, the Sandins activate their state-of-the-art defence system and relax for the evening, staring at CCTV cameras positioned around the area. But the calm is shattered when teenager Charlie temporarily raises the shutters to allow a homeless man (Edwin Hodge) to escape from a heavily armed mob.

That one act of kindness has terrifying consequences when one member of the rabble (Rhys Wakefield) makes clear that they will break into the house and kill the Sandins unless the homeless man is delivered to them

The Purge leaves a ball of nervous tension in your stomach during that opening hour as the Sandins attempt to maintain the facade of polite respectability as destruction reigns outside their home. But once that chaos breaks in, Hawke and Headey must fight for their lives in a series of breathlessly orchestrated showdowns.

DeMonaco's script begins to run out of steam when a pivotal character is unexpectedly sidelined but there's a deliciously nasty sting in the tail, just when it seems the film is posed to draw breath.

Tracey Waples Property Editor

ATTENDING a function in London this week playing the part of the corporate wife, I get a call mid-dinner to say there was an emergency at home and to call the house

Imagining the very worst, I made the call The relief that the children were fine overshadowed the news from number two son that the kitchen ceiling had water pouring through it. "It won't stop and I've used every bowl I can find and all of the towels," he said.

His father soon identified the problem as a rogue flat roof and gave him a masterclass in drain clearing over the phone. By his own admission he is no DIY expert, but the symptoms were all too recognisable.

My delight that the worst hadn't actually happened lasted only until I started to envisage the clean-up operation and the damage we might face when we got home.

In fact, it wasn't as bad as it could have been and when I think about those news pictures of floods in many parts of the country just a few months ago, my kitchen barely warrants a mention. But do flat roofs really deserve their bad boy reputations?

Leaky, unstable, high maintenance and costly is how many will describe an old flat roof but repairs need not be expensive and depending on the extent of the problems, can be undertaken on a DIY

Add to this the advances in modern technology and the fact that many manufacturers now offer lengthy guarantees and the idea of a flat roof is much more attractive than it once was.

The potential these structures have in contemporary architecture is enormous. You only have to see one episode Grand Designs to see how much they've progressed.

Whatever kind of flat roof you have, experts advise checking it twice a year and clearing away any leaves, debris and dirt so that drainage is free-flowing. In case you're wondering, we had done (honestly!) . . . but obviously not recently enough!

Buying on Instinct

Recent research concurs with our own view that most buyers buy on instinct. typically viewing their eventual home no more than twice before making a decision to buy.

Buying a property certainly appears to be a decision of the heart over the head. In other words, the I II know it when I see it approach turns out to be quite reliable.

Despite the detail offered about their property by sellers when they instruct us to market their home, buyers actually register their preferences with a very broad brush indeed. They seldom, if ever, ask what type of boiler is at the property, or if there is a double wash basin in the bathroom or an aerial point in the sitting room before viewing it. These are small details which have little bearing on whether the buyer will find the property to be a suitable home.

Once certain non-negotiables, such as price, minimum amount of accommodation, and the general location of the property have been satisfied, buyers are primarily influenced by How does it feel? and Could we be happy here? These elements are intangible, but if the right button has been pushed, virtually nothing will stop the buyer from wanting to buy the property.

Of course, the brain then tries to overrule the heart, forcing the buyer to revisit the property, just to make sure. During this second viewing the buyer will take a more detailed look at the property, and may take more notice of the type of fittings and the structural condition.

The brain will usually decide whether to support the heart solely on the strength of this second visit and the buyer will either make an offer there and then, or decide against. Our job is to facilitate the right decision.

So sellers would be well advised to remember they are selling a home, not just a building, and work with their agent to promote the lifestyle benefits of their property not just the features

BY MATT JOY

OU know a car maker is trying really hard to connect with young buyers when it purposely misspells the name of its new offering to grab maximum attention in the marketplace. Renault is the latest in a long line of manufacturers content to rip up the dictionary and its Captur - without an 'e' - enters an important and growing category, that of the mini SUV.

Competing alongside the likes of Vauxhall's Mokka, Peugeot's 2008, Nissan's Juke and even Skoda's Yeti, the Captur has to do more than simply look good to attract the attention of a savvy buying public.
There's no avoiding the fact that the Captur does look good, though. Displaying elements of Clio alongside its high-rise hatchback stance, Renault's mini SUV is offered in a bold and bright choice of exterior colours plus Mini-like contrasting shades for the roof, wheels and air intake frames.

The end result is a car with the capacity to shame some of its more conservatively styled rivals.

It's fair to say that the Captur can be categorised as a 'high-rise' Clio. The mini SUV's five-door hatchback layout certainly apes that of the conventional compact hatch, and in light of an increasing number of

Fact File

Renault Captur dCi 90 Dynamique S

PRICE range from £12,495-£18,895

FNGINF: TRANSMISSION: PERFORMANCE: ECONOMY: CO2 RATING:

1.5-litre diesel unit developing 90bhp 5-speed manual driving front wheels Maximum speed 106mph, 0-62mph 12.6s 76.4mpg 95g/km buyers downsizing from larger vehicles there's a lot to be said for the Renault's modest dimensions.

A fraction over four metres in length, the Captur is rooted in supermini territory. However, with a generous 200mm of ground clearance, in relative terms it towers over the Clios and Fiestas of this world.

The result is a lofty and, for an increasing number of buyers, desirable driving position plus the associated benefits of good all-round visibility.

Factor in a wide opening tailgate complete with a waist level load lip and reversible boot liner and you've got a package Renault hopes will tempt families out of their existing, conventional hatchbacks, estate cars and possibly larger, more costly to run

SUVs and people carriers. Certainly, on the cost of ownership front Renault's current plan on focusing on frugal, small capacity petrol and diesel engines should find favour with cost-conscious motorists.

Low fuel consumption and CO2 figures across the board are promoted and there's no doubt that for urban motoring the Captur's 1.5-litre 90 horsepower diesel motor is more than capable and registers just 95g/km

You might need to regularly shift down a gear on motorway inclines and if carrying a full load, but it's never vocal or unrefined. The same is true of the petrol alternatives, in that the real world experience is a surprisingly positive one despite the lack of cubic centimetres on offer.

Turbo technology again features alongside an all new 1.2-litre 120 horsepower motor, and like the diesel option there's the prospect of above average mpg in the real world. Combine this with the option of a slick-shifting dual clutch semi-auto gearbox on selected models and the Captur becomes a refreshingly easy to use and drive car.

For all the Captur's neutral handling, accomplished ride and modest footprint, for many the real focus will be on the car's practical elements.

Being a tall-ish car, the Captur boasts a generous level of cabin headroom. There's also plenty of legroom fore and aft, with the latter adjustable via a sliding rear bench so you can increase load space or legroom depending on your needs. Up front there's the now familiar fascia design first seen on the latest generation Clio featuring, depending on the model, a slick touchscreen incorporating audio and navigation functions. Although the cabin plastics are hard to touch, this will likely prove attractive to families willing to place durability over plush, fancy looking trim.

That said, like the Clio, Renault is pushing hard the concept of personalisation, and offers a wide choice of themed interior colour combinations and designs in a bid to connect with young buyers. The end result can be just as striking as the car's exterior and does much to lift the cabin's ambience.
Generous standard equipment across the four model range -including a good spread of safety kit -completes what is an attractive package, both visually and from a practical perspective.

Furthermore, the Captur can be had with a high-end audio and navigation system, Bluetooth phone and MP3 player connectivity plus removable and washable seat covers and a full keyless go option.

With all this in its favour, it's no wonder Renault has high hopes for its new baby.

CLEANLINESS IS NEXT TO GODLINESS

A freshly cleaned car is almost as good as a new car, so what are the best methods for giving your grimy runabout a new lease

Below are ten handy hints that will make your vehicle look like a million dollars with out costing you a similar amount'

- 1. Always try to use proper car shampoo on your paintwork, washing up liquid and other household detergents contain salt and can damage the finish over time.
- 2. A 'chamois' leather is the traditional and still the best way to dry your car, even if it has been given a bad name by generations of pushy door to door salesmen. Without it water droplets will dry on the car and leave marks.
- 3. There's no substitute for elbow grease. Flex those muscles by applying a wax or polish then a protectant. Alternatively, you could always pay one of the local kids to do it for you. But be warned, a shiny fifty pence piece and a bag of wine gums doesn't cut much ice with today's younger generation, the little scamps will charge you through the nose.
- 4. Avoid automatic car washes, the brushes can be a bit harsh, scratching and wearing paintwork.
- 5. Inside your car the household vacuum cleaner is your best friend. Use the attachments to get into the nooks and crannies.
- 6. A rolled up ball of sticky tape is great for getting hairs off seats and crumbs out of storage bins.
- 7. To do a really thorough job, you'll need an upholstery cleaning product. You'll probably be cream-crackered by this point, but put in the extra effort and the end result will be well worth it. You can even accelerate the drying process by vacuuming the foam residue off the
- 8. On glass areas, fancy car-branded products aren't necessary, you'll get a similarly good finish with good old Window Lene.
- 9. A safety point: Don't spray cleaning products near pedals or switchgear, you may loose grip at a vital moment when driving the car.
- 10. If you can possibly bear it, repeat the process every two to three weeks. You know it makes sense.

Satellite Navigation reliance grows

f you've attempted to negotiate a complex one-way system with a dithering incompetent as navigator, you might argue that the art of reading a map has been lost for some time and a recent survey indicates that we're unlikely to get it back. The reason is the growing dependence of satellite navigation technology.

The study by Dutch firm TNO found that drivers using a map drive an average of 18% further on their way to an unfamiliar destination than those using a satellite navigation computer.

The map reader is more likely to take a less direct route and become distracted, resulting in them taking a wrong turn. Satellite navigation manufacturer, Tom Tom claim that their customers make 12% fewer insurance claims as well, because they're able to concentrate on driving safely rather than worrying about where they're going.

The growth in its use has certainly been dramatic but satellite navigation is still not for everyone. According to Vansunited.co.uk, one in four drivers is considering ditching their satellite navigation system because they find the voice commands too irritating.

Brilliant Town end rival's unbeaten run

Harlow Tn 188-8 bt Old Parkonians 137 all out by 51 runs

Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League, division three

OLD Parkonians saw their unbeaten record shattered as the Harlow Town bowlers produced a sublime show at Ash Tree Field on Saturday.

Batting first, Matt Hurley (31) and Patrick Yates (47) put on a great open-ing partnership of 89 for Town before the former was dismissed in the 29th over.

A flurry of wickets saw Town slip to Ramya Upadhyay hit a quick fire 38 and the home side totalled 188-8.

Anton Buntin (21) and Jibran Azam (38) batted well together and were starting to form a good partnership for the visitors as they reached 70-1.

The key moment came when Upadhyay clean bowled the influential Haris Khan (15) in the last over of his spell, leaving Old Parks on 103-5.

Scott Baker finished the game off with two wickets in two balls to see Town to a 51-run victory.

Upadhyay (10-2-26-3), Farmer (10-1-37-3) and Baker (8.4-1-20-2) all bowled brilliantly for Town.

Skipper Ashley Alderson said: "Today was a tough test for us. They came out with a lot of chat in the field and put us under pressure, but our batsmen responded excellently to it. It was a real team effort in the field to get this win.'

Harlow Town's 2nd XI remain top in their division after a 39-run win against Old Parks IIs.

Graeme Eversden picked up four wickets and Jack Elston claimed three. Town's 3rd XI recorded a comfortable seven-wicket win against Leigh-on-

Magic Matt hits top form when it matters

PASSMORES School student Matt Hayden shone in the second round of British Karting Super One Championship with a great second place finish.

After making a solid debut with a 10th place finish in round one last month, the 12-year-old was back in action as the championship moved on to Rowrah in Cumbria.

The weekend began with a full day's practice with Matt working hard with his team managers at British Racing Karts to get the right set-up for the kart. By the end of the day the youngster was putting together some good

A little disappointed, the young karter knew he would start the final further down the pack, but after encouragement from his team, he began to believe that a comeback and a podium finish were possible.

On a drying track, Matt quickly settled down and by the end of lap one he was in 10th. Showing some great pace, by the end of lap four, he was in fifth.

Rouge had already won the Premier Division Cup and Senior Champions League finals this sea-son before they faced Marquis in the League Cup final at Harlow Town Football Club.

Marquis started better and went ahead in only the fifth minute.

Rouge's Dean McAteer was caught in possession just inside his own half by Marquis's Nathan Bethal.

Bethal ran through the middle and curled his shot round Rouge's keeper Adam Dalby. Bethal then came close to scoring a second before a Gavin Cockman volley was well saved by Marquis keeper Andros Demosthenous.

Rouge found Marquis's defensive pair of Chris Grove and Richard Goodchild hard to break down and Marquis doubled their advantage in the 18th minute.

Hawks Ray of light

Dyer's diligence factor as plastic pitch gets OK

BY ALAN SCOTT

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

WITH contractors arriving on Monday to rip up the football surface at Harlow Town FC and introduce a plastic pitch thought to cost in the region of £400,000, it seems the Hawks can thank one man for the fact that they will remain in the Ryman League and can start to build for a brighter future.

Had match secretary Ray Dyer not spotted that striker Joel Barnett was on an Essex FA suspended list for not paying an £16 fine, the player could have featured in a match for Danny Chapman's men and could have been the difference between staying up and relegation to the Essex Senior League.

This could have had a huge impact on funding for the plastic pitch, which was announced by Harlow MP Rob Halfon on Hawks Radio on Monday.

So Harlow avoided the fate suffered by Thurrock this week, who were relegated from the Ryman premier division for playing Barnett in their win over Lewes. They were deducted the three points from this game, enough to relegate the Essex side.

Dyer had contacted the FA and an investigation was carried out into Barnett. This ended with Tilbury also being deducted 18 points, while Harlow's neighbours Bishop's Stortford – managed by ex-Hawks player Ro Stringer – could be hit with a fine after pleading guilty to five charges of playing Barnett in friendly matches last summer. Hawks chief executive Tom Cunningham paid tribute to Dyer's diligence. "Obviously I am highly delighted that Ray was doing his job. Ray is a volunteer. He's been a supporter of the club for many years. He was concerned that everything that needed to be done was done and followed through. He saved the club from going down. He does not get paid. It's a huge responsibility," said Cunningham.

Barnett was originally banned when his old Sunday League club in Yorkshire, went bust owing the West Riding FA money.

The money was divided up and all of the players were told they must pay the debt.

It is thought that convicted hooligan Barnett was in jail at the time and did not realise he owed monies in the region of £16 for each player.

Thurrock's relegation to Ryman division one north earned relegated Carshalton a reprieve as they now stay in the Ryman premier.

"I have huge sympathy with Thurrock," added Cunningham. Sittingbourne will now switch back to Ryman division one south. Meanwhile, Harlow will reveal more about their installation of the plastic pitch next week.

Funding was secured for the project – exclusively revealed in the Star in November – which will be a huge money-spinner for the club with five-a-side football leagues and various other projects planned.

They follow in the footsteps of another non-League club, Maidstone, who have made huge progress since the pioneering scheme was introduced at their Kent ground at a cost of £400,000 last summer. From gates of 120 they now get 1,300 at home games.

Second loss for Harlow but skipper upbeat

LUKE Heskett's Harlow suffered a second consecutive defeat when they went down by 140 runs against Shepherd Neame Essex League division one high-flyers Hadleigh & Thundersley on Saturday.

Hadleigh batted first and were given a strong start by openers Tom Phillipe and Oliver Wagstaff, reaching 76-0 before Wagstaff was stumped for 23 off Ahmed Khawaja, who then bowled Phillippe for 65 to bring Harlow back into contention at 108-2.

However, Kiwi batsman Jesse Simpson and Sam Rowe then took over and put on 97 for the third wicket before Heskett bowled Rowe for 48.

Simpson continued to punish the Harlow bowlers and brought up an unbeaten century in the final over, finishing on exactly 100 not out as Hadleigh closed at 292-5.

Khawaja was Harlow's best bowler, finishing with 3-36 from 10 overs.

Harlow needed a strong start but that was denied by fast bowler Richard Revell, who removed Rizwan Sadiq lbw first ball.
